American Automakers Statement on Trump Administration's Announcement of Automotive Tariffs

Washington, D.C. – American Automotive Policy Council President Matt Blunt today issued the following statement on the Trump Administration's announcement of automotive tariffs.

"U.S. Automakers are committed to President Trump's vision of increasing automotive production and jobs in the U.S. and will continue to work with the Administration on durable policies that help Americans. In particular, it is critical that tariffs are implemented in a way that avoids raising prices for consumers and that preserves the competitiveness of the integrated North American automotive sector that has been a key success of the President's USMCA agreement." said Governor Matt Blunt, president of AAPC.

The American Automotive Policy Council (AAPC) represents American Automakers Ford Motor Company, General Motors Company and Stellantis. AAPC is a Washington, D.C. association representing the common public policy interests of its member companies.
